ABOUT BRAGA

The city of Braga, located in the North of Portugal, is the third largest city in the country (after Lisbon and Porto) with a population of approximately 181,000 inhabitants. The city is the capital of the Minho Province and is close to Porto, the seaside and the Galicia Region in Spain. Braga’s history may be traced back 2000 years, being an important Roman Colony during the Roman Empire (named Bracara Augusta) and later a relevant religious centre in Hispania. Currently, the region is a vibrant centre in the country with the highest level of density of young population. Braga was recently voted the 2nd European best destination 2019.
